Ken Evens, owner of Redwater IGA at 5028 79 Avenue, shared his warm and kind-hearted soul through the hiring process, looking for a new shelf facer for the local grocery store. Evens opened his arms offering employment to a young autistic man, Alan Jr Ward, near the beginning of August. He was looking to give the young man an opportunity to learn in the work world and provide him with something to take pride in. Harvest Hustle Barrel Series in Smoky Lake

By Irene van der Kloet

The end of horse-riding season is close, but Smoky Lake Riding Club doesn't close down silently for the season: At the Harvest Hustle Barrel Racing series, participants try their best to show their performances one more time. Every Sunday in September, barrel racers compete for the fastest time while leaving the barrels upright. The wide variety of competitors makes for an exciting show: the Pee Wees kick off the races on their little ponies or bigger horses, sometimes accompanied by mum running through the arena to show the barrel pattern. Without exception, these young barrel racers show they are having fun with big smiles. No doubt, here are some of our future barrel champions. The open category offers a large variety of speeds: some riders use this opportunity to get their young horses used to the show ring, other, more seasoned riders race for the fastest time, and some pretty good times have been set. On the first day, September 4, 75 participants showed their skills. On the second day, September 11, the number had grown to 95 participants. This competition is for everyone, a rider doesn't need to be a member of a barrel association, and as such, it is a great learning and socializing experience. Many volunteers make the event possible; just like any event, this event cannot occur without volunteers. Sponsors have contributed with attractive prizes, and the Smoky Lake Riding Club has ensured that the Pee Wee category always gets a prize. The other two Sundays are September 18 and 25, and interested competitors can still register, contact Marquie Bromley on Facebook.

In the Pee Wee category, several mums worked just as hard (or maybe harder) than the ponies in rounding the barrels.

Why parents must keep kids cyber safe

(NC) Connecting over social networks, in-game chats or text messaging can be valuable ways for people to communicate. But sharing information like birthdates, addresses or other personal details online, especially publicly, can leave you vulnerable to scams like phishing. And kids especially may have a hard time recognizing some of these concerns – even if they are usually the family tech whiz.

Phishing is when someone tries to lure you into providing personal information so they can steal or sell your identity, your money or other private data. Many scammers make use of details you've shared online – such as likes and dislikes, anniversaries or vacation destinations – to make their messages more personalized and therefore more enticing.

There are several red flags for phishing attacks that you and your kids can watch out for, including urgent or threatening requests, appeals for sensitive information or anything too good to be true or unexpected.

Anyone can fall prey to these scams, but due to their age, inexperience and excitement, kids may not connect the dots of something odd like winning a contest they didn't enter – especially if it's for something they really like.

As well, some of the most common red flags for phishing may be extra tricky for younger kids to spot, such as typos, incorrect logos, unprofessional word choice and improper sender information.

Make your kids aware of all the red flags anyway so they can be on the lookout and ask them to share any message they aren't sure of with you before acting on it. Be sure teach them to take their time and think things through before they click or download anything.

Here's what else you can do:

- Teach kids to create secure and unique passwords and passphrases and how to manage them.
- Teach them to think about if a message makes sense. Is it suspicious?
- Have kids ask parents for permission before opening links, attachments or downloads.
- Explain the threats to their identity, money and information. Include consequences relevant to their day-to-day lives such as loss of in-game progress or account access.
- Discuss what is appropriate to share online and why.
- Install anti-virus software to monitor your devices for malware or other cyber threats
- Enable ad-blockers and parental controls for your internet service.

Fighting inflation, making the most of your purchasing power

(NC) Inflation is quickly raising prices of goods and services, and significantly impacting monthly budgets. But there are ways to help lessen the effects. The first thing to do is figure out where inflation is hurting your household budget the most, likely with gas and groceries.

To help offset high gas prices, plan your errands and routes to cut down on travel time. Set up a carpool for your daily commute or the kids' activities, and take public transit, bike or walk when the distance and weather permits.

For groceries, try to find in-season local produce, check weekly flyers for sales and plan your meals to avoid unnecessary waste. Further stretch your savings by growing your own greens, fruits and vegetables in a garden at home.

When substitutes aren't available, find ways to mitigate costs. Rewards programs can help you save on future purchases and adventures. If you're not part of a rewards program, look for one that maximizes the money you spend, such as the BMO Ascend World Elite Mastercard.

Travel, entertainment and dining don't need to be put on the backburner due to inflation. It's been a long two years and many of us are eager to get back to the activities we've missed out on. Use your earned rewards points towards hotel rooms, flights and tourist attractions. With a plan in place and early preparation, you'll be able to enjoy your summer holidays within budget.

Radway Public Library hosted an evening session introducing Zentangle. Shown is instructor, Tammy Halun – standing, with some of the participants. It was a relaxing and creative art class.

Radway Public Library's Summer Reading Program included Wednesday Game Day. The SRP was held on a drop-in basis throughout the summer.

If you live in Alberta, you'll be getting more money back in your pocket.

Inflation is tough on everyone. That's why the Government of Alberta is helping Albertans combat the rising cost of living by providing relief.

- FUEL TAX RELIEF Alberta drivers automatically save 13¢ per litre at the pump until at least September 30th.
- ELECTRICITY REBATES Over 1.9 million homes, farms, and businesses receive a total of $300 until December to cover high electricity costs.
- NATURAL GAS REBATES Rebates are coming this fall to address high winter heating costs from October 2022 to March 2023.

A family of four will save about $2,200 this year, while a single Albertan will save nearly $1,300.

We're also making life more affordable with lower overall taxes, affordable child care and more.

Smoky Lake corn maze is now open

The Kinette Club of Smoky Lake hosts a corn maze for all ages to enjoy through the beautiful fall months of September and October. "Get Lost" in this epic-made corn maze with your friends and families for a wonderful time. Photo By Michelle Wright

By Myrina Carter

It is officially time; the Smoky Lake corn maze opened on September 3 and will continue to open until October 31. Join the local Kinette Club of Smoky Lake for a fun-filled afternoon figuring out your way through the corn maze on Saturdays and Sundays from noon to five pm. Admission is five dollars per person, while five and under are free. They are located east of the George McDougall Hospital in Smoky Lake. Weekly vendors will be at the corn maze for all who attend to enjoy and check out. Vendors like Noodle Pig mini donuts will follow, selling everyone's favourite mini donuts, lemonade, coffee, and tea. Check out the Kinette Club of Smoky Lake Facebook page for updates on future vendors.

A few notes to remember from the Kinette Club of Smoky Lake; the terrain is rough and not quite packed down yet, so the best shoes to wear are running shoes. Dogs are allowed, but owners must clean up after them and be on a leash. Bring water with you just in case you "get lost" in the maze, and most of all, have fun.

Here are a few basic maze pointers. We all think, "It's just a couple of stalks of corn. How hard can it be?" But, with that attitude, you're likely to be the first to get lost. So, be sure to pay attention ahead to know the expectations in case or when you get lost. Farmers spend a lot of time planning their intricate and beautiful corn maze designs. It's important to remember to bring out everything you take in and don't cut through the corn. That's called cheating, and it's frowned upon by many. It could be an honest and promising way to make some new friends say hello to fellow maze goers. Don't forget to dress appropriately for the weather and try your best to plan for it.

Enjoy a fun-filled afternoon finding your way through a well-planned corn maze with your family and other community members.

employees with smiles and kindness every shift he works. Evans said, "Alan is autistic and is a very gentle soul. He helps us immensely and gets the job done. It helps Alan with self-pride and he is a helpful employee like any other! He is capable and does not get any special treatment; he is just like anyone else. We are grateful for his help as an employee and to have the sweetest kid on our team!"

Ward's father speaks out about how thankful he is to have a business owner in the community of Redwater who took the time with his son. Ward said, "Ken Evans has gone over and above to help our son be employed, taking the time to teach him and help him get through the days. We truly appreciate the wonderful opportunity he has shared with us and our son, Alan Jr. We couldn't be more proud and grateful."

It shows that many community members are open to sharing growth opportunities and employment opportunities with everyone. Instead of leading with judgment, community members spread love and kindness and are lovely human beings.

Blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) bloom advisory issued for Half Moon Lake

A blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) bloom has been identified in Half Moon Lake, in Thorhild County. Residents living near the shores of this lake, as well as visitors to this lake, are advised to take the following precautions:

- Avoid all contact with blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) blooms. If contact occurs, wash with tap water as soon as possible.
- Do not swim or wade (or allow your pets to swim or wade) in any areas where blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) is visible.
- Do not feed whole fish or fish trimmings from this lake to your pets. Consider limiting human consumption of whole fish and fish trimmings from this lake, as it is known that fish may store toxins in their liver. (People can safely consume fish filets from this lake).

As always, visitors and residents are reminded to never drink or cook with untreated water directly from any recreational body of water, including Half Moon Lake, at any time. Boiling of this water will not remove the toxins produced by blue-green algae. An alternate source of drinking water should also be provided for pets and livestock, while this advisory is active.

Blue-green algae is naturally occurring, and often becomes visible when weather conditions are calm. Appearing like scum, grass clippings, fuzz or globs on the surface of water, blue-green algae can be blue-green, greenish-brown, brown, and/or pinkish-red, and often smell musty or grassy.

People who come in contact with visible blue-green algae or who ingest water containing blue-green algae may experience skin irritation, rash, sore throat, sore red eyes, swollen lips, fever, nausea and vomiting and/or diarrhea. Symptoms usually appear within one to three hours and resolve in one to two days. Symptoms in children are often more pronounced; however, all humans are at risk of these symptoms.

Weather and wind conditions can cause algae blooms to move from one location in the lake to another. As such, this advisory will remain in effect for Half Moon Lake, until further notice.

Please note that areas of Half Moon Lake in which the blue-green algae bloom is NOT visible can still be used for recreational purposes, even while this blue-green algae Health Advisory is in place.

If you suspect a problem related to blue-green algae or if you require further information on health concerns and blue-green algae, please call Health Link at 811. Additional information is also available online, at www.ahs.ca/bga.

Alberta Health Services is the provincial health authority responsible for planning and delivering health services for more than four million adults and children living in Alberta. Its mission is to provide a patient-focused, quality health system that is accessible and sustainable for all Albertans.

Money Talks: Teach your kids good money habits

(NC) Talking to kids about money management and financial literacy can be intimidating, especially if you feel like you're not a financial whiz yourself. Perhaps you never got much financial education from your parents, or you grew up with financial insecurity. According to Statistics Canada, one-third of Canadians indicate that they struggle to manage their day-to-day finances, and many avoid talking to their kids because they feel they're too young?

Here are some helpful reminders for talking about money with kids.

Talking about money isn't taboo

In some households, money is attached to self-worth, in others to poor choices, and for some, they just aren't comfortable discussing it. However, learning about money at home can help teach kids that money is not something to avoid talking about - and that's a valuable lesson to carry into adulthood where financial confidence leads to more success. It doesn't always have to be a structured conversation. You can use everyday activities as teachable moments or try digital learning tools like Mydoh to empower kids for their future.

Keep the conversations honest

Despite some fears adults have, open discussions about money among the family will help kids have the knowledge and confidence they need to make money-smart decisions. Honesty is truly the best policy, but if it feels daunting, take a family-first approach. This could mean setting a savings goal for a vacation together, having in-the-moment conversations about money at the grocery store, or simply being honest about your money mistakes so that your kids can learn from them.

Start the discussions early

The earlier you start talking to your kids and teens about financial literacy, the more confidence they'll have in managing their own money down the line. Given responsibility, experience and a little guidance, kids can get a head start in shaping strong financial futures for themselves.

Find a starting point to help your kids understand money at mydoh.ca or download the app.

Your Redwater and District Chamber of Commerce

By Myrina Carter

The Redwater and District Chamber of Commerce serves the Town of Redwater, Thorhild County and Sturgeon County. Its primary mission is to be a group of business-minded community members working together to accomplish a healthy business environment, cultural advancement, and social harmony within the surrounding areas. They hope to build a prosperous community through leadership and encouraging the involvement of the members of the community. In full support of eating local, shop local and support local, which allows our communities to thrive from the people in it.

The Redwater and District Chamber of Commerce was formed in 1962 under Canada's Board of Trade Act. The founding members totalled 34 businesses from the community, including their representatives. You may ask, what does a Chamber of Commerce do? They allow companies and individuals to accomplish what could not be done alone, sharing many resources where one can draw up ideas, energy and new opportunities.

They offer companies the voices to be heard on local, provincial and federal levels, allowing for business owners to feel heard and accomplish what they are looking to do. The Chamber speaks as a strong voice for the business community on issues like taxes, transportation, infrastructure, education, and so on.

said, "Members of our Chamber are business owners and individuals throughout Redwater, Thorhild County and Sturgeon County that come together to discuss advocacy, networking opportunities, promoting businesses and creating events for our district."

Being the voice for many local businesses, the Chamber also helps plan and partakes in many of the local events the community members attend. You can see your Chamber members at and supporting events like Lemonade Day, Sturgeon County Bount, Redwater Discovery Days, Thorhild Trade Show and many more.

For more information on the Redwater and District Chamber of Commerce, check out their website at redwaterchamber.com or call them at 587-991-7049.

Preparing livestock for winter in Redwater

Local cows are grazing and enjoying a drink while basking in the last of the lovely September weather before the cold winter soon hits our province. Photo By Myrina Carter

By Myrina Carter

As the temperature begins to drop and farmers work through the harvesting season, some are preparing for winter by preparing their livestock. Livestock includes animals like cows, pigs, horses, goats and many more. Farmers have a lot to do before the freezing temperatures hit their farms and have been busy preplanning what they will do for winter. They must prepare and plan for the basic needs of animals like food, water and shelter. Doing so will keep the animals healthy through the minus 30 weather and help reduce the number of sick animals and save money.

Ensuring a dependable water supply is an asset; farmers cannot rely on natural water sources as it will freeze and take days before it thaws. Many farmers use tank heaters or de-icers, which take well-kept maintenance to stay running each year. Some farmers don't use heaters but will insulate all the pipes and faucets.

Some livestock is accustomed to foraging through the warmer months. Therefore, farmers must consider that animals must eat more in the winter to provide extra calories for heat energy. Eating more food also gives to keep warm. Farmers always make a backup plan just in case they must follow through with emergency feeding procedures.

Shelter for livestock will need to be prepared through the fall months, and when the cooler winds begin to pick up, the shelters are called windbreaks. Windbreaks are set up for the outdoor animals to shelter from the brutal winter winds. Farmers also winterize barns and other shelter buildings. The buildings' roofs are constantly inspected and repaired to withstand the heavy weight of snow through the winter. They also set up heaters and ensure they are properly working and that the sheltered areas have good ventilation.

Farmers check on livestock daily, ensuring their livestock's needs are met and are prepared for any unexpected emergencies they may face through the cold winter months. A farmer's job is never done.
