Around the World celebration

By Brandie Majeau

Newbrook Public Library celebrated its second celebration of its year-long 65th anniversary. To commemorate 65 years, Newbrook Library will be holding special events every 65 days for the entire year. On May 11th, guests came together for an A-Z world cooking potluck lunch. The dishes included spaghetti, lentil stew, butter chicken, scotch eggs, spaetzle, cabbage rolls and so much more. They represented not only Canada but also Morocco, Germany, France, India,

Ukraine and numerous other countries - a true around-the-world tasting experience. Close to thirty participants showed up with dishes in hand to enjoy the company, a great meal and a unique experience. Newbrook Library was highlighting an e-resource with this event that can be found on the library website, A-Z World Food. This resource is available for everyone to check out and create their own world-tasting adventure. Oh yes, and because it was a "birthday" celebration, there was also cake.

Newbrook Library Librarian, Tracy Woloshyniuk cuts the birthday cake!

Thorhild Trade Show a huge success

By Brandie Majeau

On Saturday, May 6th, Thorhild Agricultural Society and Thorhild County held their annual trade show. The event had run for two years before COVID and is now in its second year since the restrictions have been lifted. A friendly trade show mascot could be seen walking around town, waving to people and promoting not only the trade show, but other events around the community as well. The trade show offered free entrance, along with a free raffle for children twelve and under. Attendants could purchase raffle tickets to try and win several prizes donated by a variety of sponsors.

Almost twenty community organizations and over 30 businesses set up tables and displays to promote themselves and inform individuals of what they have to offer the community. Guests were welcome to speak with utility and service companies, health-care professionals and a variety of organizations that operate on a volunteer basis. In between, they were invited to sample or purchase numerous food items and browse the wonderful products, many of them handmade. When asked why Thorhild County and Thorhild Ag Society worked so hard to put on the event, Larry Hryciw commented, “The purpose is to showcase local businesses, to invite outside businesses into our community, to promote community organizations and to offer a space to promote volunteerism.”

The trade show was well attended; many people with tables mentioned that there was a steady flow of people all day. These events are an important tool for community members to glimpse how much their community has to offer them. It was a wonderful day that welcomed all ages to come and experience not only information and products, but bouncy castles, concession food and fellowship with other community members.

“This is the first live Budding Authors event that we’ve been able to have since 2019,” shared Friends of the Redwater Library President Stephanie Young. “We made sure to praise the students for the amount of courage it takes to read in front of an audience.”

Fiction was the most popular genre for the writers, but the topics ranged from narratives to imaginative reimaginings of stories to personal compositions.

At the end of the evening, participants received a certificate for participating in the event and a bag of gifts that included items from both the Friends of the Library and the Redwater Library.

“As a member of the Friends, we hope to see more students at the event next year and to hear more interesting stories,” said Young.

The Friends of the Redwater Library is a volunteer organization that provides support and participates in fundraising activities for the Redwater Public Library. They are hoping to recruit more volunteers to help with events such as Budding Authors and the hot dog sale during the town wide garage sale among others. Younger patrons are encouraged to join to share their input on the library and events.

Smoky Lake County moves towards renewable energy

By Irene van der Kloet

In the May 11 county meeting, Smoky Lake County Council discussed the amendment of their existing land use bylaw regarding renewable and alternative energy. At this meeting, the public could object to or approve of the proposed amendment. In this bylaw, the county takes a significant step towards developing alternative or renewable energy. Jordan Ruegg, Planning and Development Officer of Smoky Lake County, explained the purpose of the hearing: "The purpose of this hearing is to obtain public feedback in opposition of or support for bylaw number 1436-23. The bylaw goes way beyond the existing bylaw for alternative energy, targeting solar, wind and geothermal energy, all primary alternative energy sources. The current land use bylaw lacks several requirements, policies and provisions to move forward". The county will support partnerships with educational institutions and industry to establish renewable energy projects. The county also promotes partnerships and encourages the microgeneration of renewable energy resources. A significant part is watershed management and restoration, or maintaining planning initiatives and management plans. The county will partner with indigenous communities to proceed and execute the bylaw. Another avenue is to seek to protect and restore aquatic ecosystems. This change broadens the possibility of alternative energy systems, seeking an alternative to fossil fuel means to generate energy, such as solar panels. "Alternative energy, personal, means any system, device, or structure used to collect natural energy resources, such as the sun, wind, or geothermal, to generate thermal, electrical, or mechanical energy to use as an alternative to fossil fuels and other non-renewable resources. Typical examples are, but are not limited to, personal solar energy conversion systems, personal wind energy conversion systems, and personal geothermal energy conversion systems, " as it says in the summary of changes. "A Geothermal Energy Conversion System, Personal means a power generation facility consisting of any system, device or structure that utilizes a heat pump to warm or cool air by utilizing the constant temperatures of the Earth to generate electrical power for onsite consumption requirements, either on or off-grid, and may provide residual power to the grid but is not intended to produce power primarily for resale." Jordan emphasizes that the municipal role is quite limited: the jurisdiction for approval of these projects is done through the Alberta Utility Commission (AUC), the municipality does not have much say in it all. No members of the public attended this meeting; two submitted their thoughts by email.
