Lots of summer fun at the Library

By Megan Suitor

We are halfway through the summer, and there have been a plethora of activities at the Redwater Library to keep community members entertained.

The library kicked off the season with their annual Word on the Block party on July 5, which was attended by a whopping 400 people. The always much anticipated event included a petting zoo by Finnegan Farms and a hotdog sale that was both sponsored and served by the Redwater Lion's Club.

"We had outside games of a jumbo version of Connect 4, cornhole, block building and a crafting area," shared Library Director Susan Pruss. "Our summer students, Blake and Autumn, were doing glitter tattoos, and we had a successful book sale as well."

The event was sponsored by NWR and Pembina Pipelines.

The Summer Reading Program has also reached its halfway point, with 86 participants registered.

"There are lots of fun prizes to be won, and a few contests running in the library," said Pruss. "We have lots of fun programs everyday with our summer students, so keep an eye on Facebook to see the daily schedule of events."

There was a successful Senior's Tea on June 9, which included entertainment by Larry Bucholz and a presentation by RCMP member Jennifer Keene. The library is planning to host regularly scheduled Senior's Tea events on Fridays. To accommodate those at the opposite end of the age spectrum, the library has Toddler Time on Thursday mornings from 10:15am-11.

Looking forward to the last half of the summer, the library staff is excited to take part in this year's Discovery Days.

"The Friends of the Library will be having a hotdog sale, and we will be having one of the last book sales of the year," said Pruss.

As the Summer winds down, staff are already thinking ahead to Fall activities, so keep an eye out for updates on new or returning programs.

Farmers face extremes this growing season

By Brandie Majeau

There is the adage that farmers are complainers. If you ask one, the weather may be perfect, but the farmer down the road may say it doesn't matter because this good weather can't last. Those who do not farm may roll their eyes as they listen to coffee talk about the plight of crop production. Fellow agriculturalists may say it's just the others' personality that makes them pessimistic, but the reality is, there are times when they may be right to grumble. The average citizen has felt the challenges that have arisen in 2023, and the farmer has felt them as well.

This spring began with a lack of moisture from a winter devoid of any significant accumulation of snow for Thorhild County and surrounding areas. As temperatures rose and soil thawed and dried, seeding began with an uneasy anticipation of what the growing season would bring. Temperatures continued to rise, and the deficiency of ground water followed by the lack of usual spring showers progressed into drought. Germination was slow and as seedlings began to emerge, faces turned to the sky in askance of when the rains would come. Without adequate moisture, grains will focus on survival and not produce the usual kernels in their husks.

As the drought progresses, the overwhelming fear is complete loss, plants that simply cannot sustain themselves anymore.

As crops began to emerge across the county and the occasional shower lent slight reprieve, several farms experienced loss due to a late-season frost. Those with older hay fields and pastures expressed concern because even if rains come later, they never seem to do well with a season that begins with drought. And then the rain began. Several farmers that had applied herbicide already found that a second growth of weeds began and were now invading their crops. And the rain kept coming.

Some farmers began to notice more germination of the original seed, causing two stages of crop growth. Rain gauges were continuously checked and emptied. Low areas began to fill with water. Between the torrential amounts of rain, crops were laid flat and damaged by windstorms. Hail blanketed several areas destroying the already struggling plant life. And the rains kept coming.

As harvest season approaches, many farmers are anxiously awaiting what the next few weeks will bring. Crops are already rotting in the standing water that doesn't seem to be dissipating quickly. What yield there may or may not be stand to question if the equipment can even get to it.

"Complaints" that there may have been too much rain now hold merit as many stalks take on that yellowish tinge and soil is so saturated that if moisture continues, "how are we going to get the crops off?" While many would shrug and say, "So what? They have crop insurance." Local farmers have been expressing their frustration that they are not being adequately covered for loss due to a bureaucratic decision that the damage or loss has not met specific criteria.

As with most people that are watching the progression of our economy, farmers are also faced with rising interest rates, concerns of input costs vs income, and a severely interrupted supply chain of shortages and rising costs, not just for parts but for equipment itself. Farmers, like many business owners, are feeling the pinch of a lack of employees and an absence of skilled or qualified labour such as mechanics and agricultural business staff. So, farmers complain...just like most of the population. In addition to timing and weather being everything to them, it also seems like something is always breaking down. Once in a while we just might have to step back with understanding and allow it. The conversations surrounding their livelihood may sound like complaining but it may simply be a concern they are conditioned to feel, "What will go wrong next?"

SUDOKU CROSSWORDS

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

75th Anniversary of the discovery of oil

By Megan Suitor

Through the months of July and August back in 1948, crews were hard at work on Hilton Cook's farm drilling for oil. The laborious task began on July 2, 1948, after the seismograph work had been completed. A wildcat crew that was led by Fin Lineham began assembling the Imperial Esso #1 drilling rig on the Cook farm, working through most of July until it was operational on July 23, 1948. The impact on the small farming community of Redwater was substantial. Many of the men working on building the massive drilling rig were from outside the area, and a campsite of small shacks was erected on the edge of town to accommodate the increased population.

At the time of the discovery, Redwater consisted of only ten retail establishments and the population was mostly Ukrainian wheat farmers. With subsurface mineral rights having been reserved to the Crown after 1887, many of the landowners were not eligible for royalties for any oil discovered. So important to the province, and even the country, was this oil discovery that both MLA Peter Chaba and Alberta Premier Earnest Manning were on hand for the opening of the Discovery Well. From the end of July, and through the month of August, crews worked the Imperial Esso #1, conducting drill stem tests at increasing depths. Twenty-three tests were completed. On the evening of August 30 on test number twenty-four, at an interval depth of 3110-3130 feet, oil flowed to the surface and the official discovery of oil in Redwater was made. This first drilling rig led to more and more rigs dotting the area around Redwater, and as the town grew, many rigs were even within the town limits. There was even a rig in the schoolyard. The tiny rural hamlet grew to 3000 inhabitants in less than a year, with accommodation being obtained wherever it was available. The Imperial Oil office was even housed in a chicken coop because there were not enough establishments to accommodate the growing community. As the population exceeded the capacity

Central role in community for Smoky Lake Library

By Irene van der Kloet

The Smoky Lake Library is becoming increasingly a hub in the community and surrounding area. Lise van der Vaart, library manager, talks about the library with passion and enthusiasm and has been actively promoting programs and making community connections while improving the library. One of the library's first activities during the early summer was the Town Wide Garage Sale they participated in. "We found new homes for eight boxes of books, some DVDs, Christmas décor, etc. Some people did not even know there was a library in the community. One person applied for a card, and another requested an application (possibly two more members). The books were offered for free, but we said we'd appreciate donations and made $172 this year", Lise shares. "Our computers needed upgrading. We had some money allocated for that in the budget, so I have ordered a new staff computer and a colour printer as the old computer was getting slow. This way, we can serve our community better. We hope to add a new computer through a grant we applied for", Lise says. The closing of the old H.A. Kostash school also has implications for the library but in a positive way. "Programs like Community Learning Council (CLC) and Family Resource Network (FRN) have moved all their items out of the old school. We have offered space to store them here - if needed - when they have nowhere else to go. They can run their programs from here as well, their programs run outside of library hours, and this will bring more people into our library". Lise is always thinking of attracting more people to the library. Before Covid, Emilee Feniak ran the non-fiction book club, but that program was cancelled during the pandemic. She plans to start it up again. This will also bring more people into the library during library hours. Elena Jarema will possibly store the Angel Tree items in the library and use the library later this year for 1-2 days to make the Christmas Hampers. In addition to these activities, the library has programming during the summertime: Lego and blocks on Tuesdays, board games and puzzles on Wednesdays, and the Adult Book Club on the last Monday of the month. There is a "read 15 minutes on Friday". All readers need to do is report back "Yes, I did it". Storywalk will come in from Northern Lights Library Society on the last weekend in July. Lise keeps an active Facebook page, listing new additions to the book collection and library activities. The Smoky Lake Library is on 50th Street, next to the County Public Works yard. Opening hours can be found on the Facebook page of Smoky Lake Public Library.

Temporary foreign workers in Alberta

By ATB Financial Team

Temporary foreign workers are an important part of Alberta's labour force with about 45,000 permit holders coming to the province in 2022. This was a 62% increase over the number of arrivals in 2021.

Over the first half of 2023, the number of foreign workers coming to Alberta was 147% higher than at the same point in 2022. If this pace continues, Alberta is on track to welcome over 65,000 new foreign workers in 2023.

There are two programs under which foreign job seekers can apply to work in Canada: 1) the Temporary Foreign Worker Program (TFWP); and 2) the International Mobility Program (IMP). The TFWP is aimed at addressing local labour shortage by allowing Canadian employers to hire foreign workers to fill temporary jobs when qualified Canadians are not available.

As such, the TFWP requires employers to complete a Labour Market Impact Assessment. "A positive LMIA will show that there is a need for a foreign worker to fill the job. It will also show that no Canadian worker or permanent resident is available to do the job."

TWFP permit holders tend to work in agriculture, food services and accommodation, or as caregivers.

The IMP does not require a Labour Market Impact Assessment and is aimed at providing "reciprocal benefits for Canadian citizens" (i.e. so Canadians can apply for temporary work permits in other countries), and providing broad economic, cultural, or other competitive advantages to Canadians. The IMP also facilitates the movement of workers covered under free trade agreements such as the Canada-US-Mexico Agreement and intra-company transfers.

Typical occupations of IMP permit holders in Alberta include university professors, engineers, IT experts, and medical specialists.

The IMP is the larger of the two programs covering 75% of temporary foreign workers coming to Alberta in 2022.
