

Lamont Rodeo a summer sizzling favourite

By Brandie Majeau

Lamont recently marked the 30th anniversary of their beloved Summer Sizzler Rodeo, which took place on July 13 and 14. The festivities commenced with the vibrant Town of Lamont Parade and a delightful pancake breakfast, setting the perfect tone for the rodeo kick-off. Families and rodeo enthusiasts were treated to an impressive display of skills and expertise during the kid's rodeo, which set the stage for the thrilling events to follow. The opening ceremonies, conducted by Lord Strathcona's Mounted Troop, signaled the official start of an action-packed weekend filled with spectacular rodeo events.

The Feledichuk Family's dedication to community and family legacy led to the establishment of the Feledichuk Curran Memorial tournament in 2015. This tournament was created as a heartfelt tribute to their grandparents and to support local organizations through fundraising. Over the years, the tournament has proven to be a vital source of financial support for regional projects, particularly for those facing financial constraints. Unfortunately, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the tournament was put on hold for two years, skipping 2020 and 2021. However, in 2022, the family revived the tournament with a renewed sense of purpose and commitment.

The impact of the tournament extends beyond fundraising, as it also plays a crucial role in providing

Little Dipper Daycare opens its doors

By Brandie Majeau

On April 22, 2024, Little Dipper Daycare opened in Radway, offering care for children aged 12 months to 12 years from 6:45 am to 5:45 pm, and after-school care.

The daycare also provides transportation services to Thorhild and Waskatenau. Kali Stow, Little Dipper Daycare Owner/Director, began working in Thorhild in August of 2021 and started her Level 1 Early Childhood Educator. Transitioning through further studies in the following year through Portage College and accepting a position at Andrew School to run their preschool program, she completed her certificate. Then, she moved on to complete her ELCC Diploma in December 2023. After Andrew School closed in the summer of 2023, Stow moved to fulfill her long-term goal of opening her daycare. Turning her vision into reality began in September 2023 as she navigated the various aspects of running a private facility and tackled the bureaucratic challenges to transition the Little Dipper Daycare into a successful care facility.

Stow carefully considered the pros and cons of running a private care facility, but ultimately wanted the freedom to make and implement changes, without a board, as needed for the benefit of attending children. With support from Thorhild FCSS and AHS, Little Dipper Daycare can provide access to occupational therapists, physical therapists, and speech pathologists. Stow and her Assistant Director, Kelly Craig, emphasized the importance of offering these services to meet each child's needs individually, often offering early intervention to prepare them for their next step before attending school.

After Kali Stow and Kelly Craig spoke about their experiences in childcare, they described many instances where the staff were unhappy, which affected the entire facility's mood. Stow explained that part of the vision was to create a facility where happy kids are a result of having happy staff. Children spend long hours in their care, and providing a positive environment where everyone's well-being is valued will encourage a low turnover rate with staff. This creates a distinct difference between being a daycare and not just a babysitting service.

Little Dipper Daycare promotes individual independence, and the staff is there to support the needs of the children. They have created an environment that encourages experiences and free learning. There is an opportunity for fun and gentle encouragement to challenge themselves and experience continual growth. The daycare provides a warm and calm atmosphere amid the joyful chaos that brings the children together as a familial unit. This expands their experiences through peer modeling and helps them become little leaders with purpose through play. "They are allowed to explore," explained Craig, emphasizing that the children are seen as tiny humans deserving respect and the freedom to make individual choices, as opposed to the "seen-but-not-heard" mentality.

Stow described the wide range of programming available for the children, including unique opportunities such as raising butterflies and hatching chicks. Her vision for a space where children can learn through play, based on their individual interests and free will, is evident in the children's happiness as they talk about their day. The opening of Little Dipper Daycare has received tremendous support from the community, and she is grateful for all the donations and various forms of support, such as individuals offering to fill the kiddie pools with fresh water each morning during the heat wave. There are still some renovations planned, including an outdoor perimeter fence for safety and privacy, as well as the need for more outdoor toys and organizational units. However, these things will come in time. Little Dipper Daycare has been focused on basing its reputation on word of mouth rather than advertising and letting that stand on its own. "Our kids are amazing. Our staff is amazing." expressed Stow, and she is looking forward to the future and what it holds for Little Dipper Daycare.

Full STEAM ahead....

By Brandie Majeau

Redwater Public Library is proud to present an innovative educational summer program focused on STEAM, available every Thursday afternoon. This cutting-edge program incorporates Science, Technology, Engineering, the Arts, and Mathematics to guide student inquiry, dialogue, and critical thinking. Education is at a point where it is not only possible but imperative that environments facilitate fluid, dynamic, and relevant learning. People often forget that observing a butterfly is science or that noticing the stunning color of a flower is art. For instance, students might design and build a model bridge, create a digital art piece or conduct a scientific experiment. The possibilities are endless. The world is like a captivating, intricate masterpiece of discovery, each thread weaving its own unique story. STEAM can break free of traditional brick-and-mortar boxes and be explored within or outside conventional classrooms,

Integrating concepts, topics, standards, and assessments disrupts student's typical course of events and changes the traditional methods of 'school.' This transformation is not just a change but a revolution in learning and understanding, offering a hopeful and optimistic future for today's youth.

STEAM combines a variety of disciplines to provide a comprehensive approach to education. By integrating arts practices, design principles, and standards, STEAM elevates STEM learning to a whole new level. It encourages critical thinking, inquiry, and process-based learning, replacing limitations with wonder and innovation. STEAM is a method that applies real-world practices to teaching and learning, aiming to connect different areas of learning and provide a well-rounded education for children. The idea surrounding STEAM lessons and the approach is based on deep questioning. Asking the more profound questions.

At the heart of this approach is inquiry, curiosity, the ability to find solutions to a problem, and creativity in finding those solutions. This means that the humanities, including subjects like history, literature, and philosophy, are woven into STEAM just like everything else. This program is designed to be inclusive, allowing the use of a STEAM lesson with those ideas because it is fundamentally built upon asking excellent questions and seeking solutions to the problems presented in those content areas. STEAM is not limited to STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) or the arts. It offers a myriad of possibilities to connect all fundamentals through inquiry.

This boundless potential of STEAM should inspire and motivate educators and students alike, showing them that there are no limits to what they can achieve. The strategies, thinking process, critical thinking, and teaching dynamics of STEAM can be endlessly evaluated, studied, and researched. Redwater Public Library aims to provide only some of the answers about STEAM but encourages its young patrons to explore why and how it is used. STEAM is a process of application that will empower future generations to create meaning for themselves and others. Radway Library is offering an opportunity for in-depth exploration this summer.

An exploration into the world of weather

By Brandie Majeau

On Thursday, June 27, the Radway Public Library hosted an engaging kid's craft day focused on the fascinating topic of "Wild Weather." The event, organized by the dedicated volunteer program director and craft creator, Alexandra Taralson, brought together a group of enthusiastic children eager to delve into the wonders of meteorology. Alexandra skillfully guided the children through an array of captivating experiments, allowing them to witness the magic of rain falling from clouds, create miniature tornados in a bottle and explore a wide range of other hands-on activities.

The day's journey into the wild world of weather was not just educational, but also a fun and engaging experience. As the children eagerly participated in the various experiments, they found themselves immersed in a captivating exploration of science, perhaps unaware that they were absorbing valuable knowledge that would deepen their understanding of the natural world.

This delightful crafting and activity adventure serves as a wonderful reminder to explore the wealth of entertainment and educational resources available at local libraries throughout the summer season. While summer holidays are filled with enjoyable and leisurely days basking in the sun and idle moments or days filled with unstructured fun, the reality is understanding that parents often need to balance work commitments, children may experience periods of solitude, and some days can seem endless. Fortunately, Radway Public Library is just one of the many local libraries that offer an exceptional opportunity for an enriching and enjoyable experience right in one's own hometown.

Simple precautions can protect you from heat and sun

Albertans are encouraged to take some simple precautions so they can safely enjoy activities when it's hot and sunny this summer.

Many factors can cause heat stress, such as UV radiation, temperature and humidity. Make sure to check on loved ones, especially those who may be socially isolated or live in housing without air conditioning, to see how they are coping. Older adults, infants, pregnant women and people with underlying health conditions are at greatest risk from extreme heat.

Heat stroke is a life-threatening medical emergency, which requires medical attention as soon as possible. Symptoms of heat stroke include confusion, severe restlessness or anxiety, nausea and vomiting, fast heart rate, lack of sweat, dizziness, fainting, or unconsciousness.

For emergencies, visit your nearest local emergency department or call 911.

Here are a few ways to avoid the heat this summer:

Keep cool at home:

- Close your blinds or curtains and use awnings and shutters.
- Do activities early or later in the day when it is cooler.
- Use air conditioning if possible. If you don't have air conditioning, go into the basement or visit a cool location, such as a shopping centre or library.
- Take frequent cool showers or baths and apply a cold towel to your neck.

Keep cool when outdoors:

- Plan a place to take breaks in the shade to cool off.

- Drink lots of water and other non-alcoholic, non-caffeinated beverages to stay hydrated.
- Avoid strenuous activities if possible.
- Protect your skin from the sun:
 - Wear a broad-rimmed hat, long-sleeved shirts and pants that cover skin with UV-protective-labelled clothing.
- Be aware certain medications increase the health risks from extreme heat exposure. Find out if your medication causes you to be more sensitive to sunlight or heat stress.
- Choose a water-resistant sunscreen that has a broad-spectrum sun protection factor (SPF) of 30 or higher. Apply sunscreen generously 20 minutes before going outside and reapply frequently and especially after swimming, strenuous exercise or towel drying.

Pay attention to your pets:

- Make sure they have fresh water and keep them out of the heat as much as possible.
- Never leave a pet unattended in a vehicle.
- Brush your pets coat to promote air circulation. Do not shave them as their fur protects them from the sun.
- Use a spray bottle to give pets a cool misting.
- Walk pets on the grass if possible and take walks during cooler times of the day.

Stay safe and prevent injuries this summer

Alberta Health Services (AHS) is encouraging Albertans to keep themselves and their loved ones safe as they enjoy summer.

Here are some tips to stay safe with your loved ones:

At the playground:

- Always supervise young children. Actively watch your child and stay close enough to take action, if needed.
- Take the Playground Safety Yes Test to see if young children are ready for safe play.
- Remove necklaces or hooded sweatshirts as these can get caught in playground equipment.

When bicycling, skateboarding, in-line skating or other outdoor activities:

- Wear a helmet and always check the helmet fits correctly.
- Replace helmet after five years or after any crash when the person wearing the helmet has hit his/her head.
- Never use a helmet with missing parts and ensure all straps, adjusters and fasteners are working correctly.
- Wear the right helmet for the right activity. Driving motorized off-highway vehicles, such as ATVs, dirt bikes, quads and side-by-sides, need specific helmets.

When driving:

- Make sure children are in the correct car seat or booster seat for their age and size.

- Do not use handheld devices of any kind when you are behind the wheel.
- Look out for pedestrians and cyclists and be patient as they cross or occupy the road.

- Manage your speed. Follow speed limits and be patient especially in 30 km/h or 40 km/h zones.

Alberta Health Services is the provincial health authority responsible for planning and delivering health supports and services for more than four million adults and children living in Alberta. Our mission is to provide a patient-focused, quality health system that is accessible and sustainable for all Albertans. Our current focus is on reducing emergency department wait times, improving EMS response times, increasing access to surgeries, and improving patient flow.

Energize with caution: New labels on caffeinated energy drinks

(NC) How do you power through your late-night work or study sessions? Do you rely on caffeinated energy drinks, coffee or chocolate? These foods all contain caffeine, which you may want to limit. Health Canada recommends a daily intake of no more than 400 mg of caffeine for adults over 18. For reference, energy drinks can contain up to 180 mg of caffeine per can.

Supplemented foods, such as caffeinated energy drinks, are regulated by Health Canada. They require labels to help you know what ingredients like caffeine or taurine have been added to them.

Other examples of supplemented foods include snack bars and fruit drinks, which could be supplemented with:

- minerals such as calcium
- vitamins such as vitamin C
- amino acids such as L-leucine

As of January 1st,

2026, all supplemented foods will be required to have new labels, but some are already starting to appear on the market, so here's what you can expect to see.

All supplemented foods will show a supplemented food facts table instead of a nutrition facts table. There will be a "Supplemented with" section listing the type and amount of each supplemental ingredient, like caffeine.

Some of these foods will also carry a caution identifier, which includes an exclamation mark and the words "Supplemented" and "Health Canada" on the front, alerting you to read cautions written on the back or side of the product. An example of a caution is: "Do not drink more than 1 serving per day."

Whether for yourself or other family members, find more information at canada.ca/supplemented-foods.

Beefing up: Cattle prices in Alberta keep rising

By Rob Roach,
 ATB ECONOMICS

Already the highest on record, the average prices received by Alberta ranchers for their cattle increased again in May.

The price of both cattle for slaughter and cattle for feeding rose 3% in May. Compared to May 2023, the year-over-year (y/y) price was 12% higher for cattle for slaughter and 16% higher for cattle for feeding. A key factor in the upward trajectory of cattle prices is the downsizing of the North American herd in the face of drought and escalating operating costs.

Why Canadians are living longer – and what that means for retirement

(NC) Life expectancy in Canada is currently about 83 years. Fifty years ago, it was about 73 years. Can we expect that trend to continue? Can Canadians a half-century from now really expect to live another 10 extra years?

According to UN population data, mortality rates have steadily declined for the past century in Canada and across the developed world. This corresponds with improvements in our diet, public infrastructure such as sanitation and waste treatment, safety standards, and the availability and quality of public health institutions such as hospitals and childhood immunization programs.

Can the life expectancy boost from these changes be sustained, or will these gains naturally trail off? And what new factors do we have to consider?

Actuaries are risk assessment professionals who advise on things like government policy on pensions and insurance. Some of them spend a lot of time considering life expectancy and the factors that affect it.

In looking for answers, they find that many of these advancements are a double-edged sword. Destruction of natural habitat threatens the world's biodiversity. Pollution impacts our access to clean air and water. And microplastics can be found everywhere in the food chain.

Abundance has also contributed to an overall more sedentary lifestyle that can lead to health risks like an increase in Type 2 diabetes. And there are other strains on the health-care system, too, ranging from a shortage of primary care physicians to overuse of antibiotics and the long-term impacts of COVID-19.

How will all of these things impact life expectancy? The answer is unclear, but so is the path to longer lives for Canadians in the future. For their part, the UN projects our life expectancy will reach 89 years in 2074. Stay tuned to find out.

You can learn more about Canada's actuaries and the work they do at cia-ica.ca.
